

Can supermarket lockers be opened for taking photos

This PDF is generated from: <https://smartflooringsolutions.co.za/06-06-22-18959.html>

Title: Can supermarket lockers be opened for taking photos

Generated on: 2026-05-31 15:16:42

Copyright (C) 2026 Smart BESS Solutions. All rights reserved.

For the latest updates and more information, visit our website: <https://smartflooringsolutions.co.za>

While photographers have the right to take pictures in public, there are scenarios where law enforcement may intervene, such as in situations related to public safety or ongoing police ...

Your right to take a photo in public is not absolute. Understand how location, privacy, and property ownership define the legal boundaries for photographers.

In most cases, if the grocery store is open to the public, you are ...

As a general rule, if a private property is open to the public, you are usually allowed to take photographs. However, it's essential to respect any explicit rules set by the property owner or ...

I've researched the same in wondering about photographing in malls. You would need consent from the market owner. In some places you also need a permit even when in public, just depends on the venue.

It is private property. So, yes, store staff can demand that you not take photos.

Taking photos in grocery stores is generally legal, but it depends on the store's policies as they are private property. Store management can set rules prohibiting photography, and violating these rules ...

In general it's still OK to take photos in a private place open to the public, unless you have been told not to. That might include a sign at the entrance or within the shop saying no ...

Here's a good rule of thumb: if a private property is open to the public (like a grocery store), you can take photos unless the owner posts a sign saying you can't. If you assume you're ...

So if someone spots you taking photos of other people in a store, they might assume that you are doing so to post them to a website where other people can make fun of them.

Can supermarket lockers be opened for taking photos

Web: <https://smartflooringsolutions.co.za>

